LOWELL NORMAL SCHOOL

THE OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED

The Lowell Normal School offers to high school graduates, or persons of equivalent preparation, an opportunity to fit themselves for the teaching profession. It carries on three regular courses: (a) The Two-year Course. (b) The Three-year Course. (c) The Course for Supervisors of Music.

The following paragraphs summarize the more important facts concerning each of these courses:—

(a) The Two-year Course.—This is intended primarily to fit students to teach in the first six grades of the elementary schools. During the first, or junior, year instruction is carried on very largely in the classes of the normal school proper. For approximately eight weeks, however, of the junior year each student takes a course in observation and participation in one of the practice schools, for the purpose of securing a first-hand knowledge of children in the classroom. During these eight weeks, for an hour each day, juniors observe classroom practices under the direction of a normal school instructor, and opportunity is given for teaching small groups of children. Students are thus enabled early in their course to decide as to their real aptitude for teaching, and to choose the particular type of work that furnishes the most appeal.

During the senior year a period of ten weeks is again given over to work in the practice schools. During this time students are given a larger measure of responsibility for the actual teaching and management of the classroom. Throughout the entire course—and this applies to the other courses as well—the emphasis is placed not so much on the acquisition of knowledge, as on the development of skill in applying methods of instruction, and the underlying aim stressed in all the courses is the study of children and the teaching of children. Young women who like children cannot fail to find normal school work keenly interesting.

(b) The Three-year Course.—This includes all the subjects and activities offered in the two-year course, and in addition gives opportunity for a full year's independent teaching in selected communities. The three-year student leaves the normal school in April of her senior year, and enters upon a year's teaching. This is done under regular classroom conditions, and under pay. Several times during the year she is visited by normal school instructors, and her progress noted. In April of the year following she returns to the normal school for her final term of work, and graduates in June. Such a student graduates with a full year of teaching to her credit, and is not regarded as an inexperienced beginner. The universal testimony is to the effect that the added year of work "in the field" is of great value.

The Course for Music Supervisors.—This is a professional course to provide suitable training, both theoretical and practical, for supervisors and departmental teachers of music in the public schools. The course is planned to meet the needs of the increasingly important place music is taking in the field of education. The superior training facilities of the Lowell Normal School make possible an unexcelled opportunity for preparation for music leadership. This course may be completed in three years by graduates from a high school, and in one year by graduates of normal school, college or conservatory. Admission to the one-year course may be by examination or not, according to the judgment of the Music Director. In addition to the work in music students who are preparing for music supervision, may be required to take certain other subjects which are necessary to the equipment of a successful supervisor of music, in the public schools, such as psychology, history of education, oral English, children's literature and history of education.

Facilities for Practice Teaching.—The Lowell Normal School is especially fortunate in its facilities for student practice teaching. These include two rural two-room schools in Tewksbury, the Lexington Avenue School in the suburbs of Lowell, and the Bartlett and Morey schools in the city.

On account of these unusual facilities the students in the Lowell Normal School have opportunity for observation, participation and practice in teaching during both the junior and senior years. This work is done under the skilled supervision of critic teachers, and the number of available rooms is sufficient to provide each student with all necessary individual attention.

Living Accommodations.—The Lowell Normal School has no dormitory, but a list of rooms and boarding places is kept on file at the school. A midday luncheon is served at the school on days when school is in session.

In General.—All students will be charged with a Registration Fee of $10.00 per year, payable during the first week of school. Each pupil not a resident of this State shall pay tuition to the extent of $50.00 for each half year.

State aid, to a limited extent, may be granted to deserving resident students after they have been in attendance for a least one term, provided they do not live in towns where the normal schools are situated. Applications for this aid are to be made to the principal.

The Lowell Normal School is always open to those interested in its work and extends a cordial invitation to teachers, school committees, superintendents and parents to investigate its methods, attend classes or to inspect the buildings at any time.

There is no school session on Saturday.

Superintendents who wish to employ normal graduates are invited to visit the practice schools, where they will find pupil-teachers at work throughout the year.

For catalogues, specimen examination papers, or any special information, address the principal at Lowell.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION TO MASSACHUSETTS STATE NORMAL SCHOOLS

I. Application for Admission. Every candidate for admission to a normal school is required to fill out a blank entitled "APPLICATION FOR ADMISSION TO A STATE NORMAL SCHOOL" and send it to the principal of the normal school that he desires to enter. This blank may be secured from the principal of the high school or the normal school and should be filed as soon after January 1 of the senior year as the candidate decides to apply for admission.

II. Blanks to be Filed by the High School Principal. The principal of the high school last attended is expected to fill out two blanks—one giving the "HIGH SCHOOL RECORD" and the other a "RATING OF PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS"—and send them to the principal of the normal school.

III. General Qualifications. Every candidate for admission as a regular student must meet the following requirements:

1. Health. The candidate must be in good physical condition and free from any disease, infirmity, or other defect that would unfit him for public school teaching.

2. High School Graduation. The candidate must be a graduate of a standard four-year high school, or have equivalent preparation.

3. Completion of Fifteen Units of High School Work. The "HIGH SCHOOL RECORD" must show the completion of fifteen units accepted by the high school in meeting graduation requirements, a unit being defined as follows:

"A unit represents a year's study in any subject in a secondary school, so planned as to constitute approximately one-fourth of a full year of work for a pupil of normal ability. To count as a unit, the recitation periods shall aggregate approximately 120 sixty-minute hours. Time occupied by shop or laboratory work counts one-half as much as time in recitation."

4. Personal Characteristics. The "RATING OF PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS" and the moral character of the candidate, must, in the judgment of the principal of the normal school, warrant the admission of the candidate.

IV. Scholarship Requirements. Of the 15 units presented for admission, at least 10 must be selected from the list given below in Section V and must be of a satisfactory grade as determined by certification or examination. Three of these ten units must be in English and one in American History and Civics. Applicants for admission to the Practical Arts Curriculum of the Fitchburg Normal School may substitute evidence of practical experience in some industrial pursuit to meet a part of the above requirements.

1. Certification. Credit by certification may be granted in any subject in which the candidate has secured a certifying mark (A or B) in the last year for which such credit is claimed, provided that the student is a graduate of a Class A high school or is in the upper half¹ of the graduating class of a Class B high school.

2. Examination. Any candidate not securing credit by certification for 10 units must secure credit for the remaining number of units by examination in subjects chosen from the list in Section V.

3. Candidates are not to present themselves for examination in subjects not pursued during the last four years of the secondary school.

V. List of Subjects for Certification or Examination.

COURSE FOR MUSIC SUPERVISORS

The State Normal School at Lowell conducts a postgraduate course for the training of music supervisors and departmental teachers of music. The course is planned to meet the needs of the increasingly important place which music is taking in the field of education.

The superior training facilities of the Lowell Normal School make possible an unexcelled opportunity for preparation for music leadership.

This course may be completed in three years by high school graduates and in one year by graduates of normal schools or colleges.

In connection with the work in music, students who are preparing for music supervision may be required to take certain other subjects which are necessary to the equipment of a successful teacher of music in the public schools, such as psychology, history of education, methods of teaching and poems for children.

The course for supervisors of music includes the following:—

Subject Matter.—Intervals; scales, major and minor; chromatic tones and the characters used to represent them; time, rhythmic groups and measure formation; Italian terms for expression and tempo; musical form; writing of melodies; sight singing; study of the child-voice, its character, needs and possibilities.

Public School Music Methods.—Function of public school music and aim in teaching it; principles of pedagogy as applied to the teaching of music; courses of study for grades and high school.

Music Appreciation.

Course 1.—Various music forms will be studied (through the use of piano, voice and talking machine) with explanatory data of biography and history, according to the following outline:—

1. Folk music.
2. Classic school from Bach to Beethoven.
3. Romantic school from Beethoven to Brahms.
4. Modern music.

Course 2.—The use of music in education. Free rhythmic response, prescribed rhythmic response, listening lessons, correlation of music with oral and written English, geography, history and literature, rhythmic drawing and original songs.

Observation and Practice Teaching.—A demonstration of student's working knowledge of the foregoing; ability to inspire and conduct a class.

Choruses, School Orchestras and Glee Clubs.—Their organization, material and conducting.

Violin and Piano Classes.—Plans for their organization and administration; methods of teaching.

Concerts by and for Children.—Their value and administration.

High School Credits for the Study of Music under Private Instruction.—Comparative study of working plans for the granting of such credits.

Lectures and Discussions concerning Various Phases of Public School Music.

1. The Ideals of the Music Supervisor.
2. Relation of Music Supervisor to Children.
3. Relation of Music Supervisor to Teachers.
4. Relation of Music Supervisor to Educational System.
5. Relation of Music Supervisor to Local Musicians.
6. Relation of Music Supervisor to Community.

Supplementary Work in Voice, Piano and Harmony.—As may be prescribed by the music director.

State Diploma

Upon their completion of the course for supervisors and departmental teachers of music, students will receive a diploma from the State Department of Education, stating that they have completed the required training and are duly qualified to teach in their respective fields.

Relation of Special Students to the School

A feature of the Lowell State Normal School is its student government, in the hands of the School and Society League, of which each student is a member. The students of the supervisors' class are organized as a section of the League.

Living Conditions.

While the Lowell Normal School has no dormitory as yet, the school aids in placing the out-of-town students in favorable and pleasant environment.

Course of Study

The course of study followed in preparation and teaching is that compiled by the educational council of the National Conference of Music Supervisors. This course of study is supplemented by a more detailed one arranged by the director of music of the school.

Training Schools

Exceptional advantages are derived from the course offered for supervisors of music in the public schools. One of the most important of these is the splendid opportunity afforded each student to first observe, and later carry out, all theories and methods taught at the Normal School. This observation and teaching is done in the various training schools, the largest of which is the Bartlett School. Here the prospective supervisor is able to exercise her knowledge, develop her personality and display her ability by working with elementary grades and junior high. Each day's work in the training school is followed by constructive criticism.

Student Musicales

Student musicales are held from time to time during the year, in which each student is given an opportunity to participate. These entertainments are of educational value both to the audience and to the students furnishing the program.

Music Appreciation

There are two courses in music appreciation: One is given to the special music students, the other to both special and regular students. These courses for elementary and high schools are taken up not only from the supervisor's standpoint, but also from that of the grade teacher. These are given in the same form in which the supervisor would present the subject to the teacher, and the teacher to the child. One period a week is devoted to each.

Musical Organizations

The Normal School has three musical organizations,—the glee club, the orchestra and the banjo-mandolin club.

The glee club comprises chosen voices from the student body, together with the music students. An opportunity is thus given to the prospective supervisor for coming into intimate contact with the organization and conducting of a glee club. The glee club meets once every week for a period of forty minutes, with additional practice time for concerts and entertainments.

The school orchestra affords an opportunity for the girls in the supervisors' course to study orchestration and put into practice their knowledge of orchestra leadership. To be able to conduct an orchestra correctly is no mean attainment, and the future supervisor who can do this should have no hesitancy in later beginning and carrying on an orchestra in her own schools.

The banjo-mandolin club is simply for amusement and pleasure and informal entertainments. Each spring a concert of these organizations, assisted by professional soloists, is held, when some standard work is given.

Chorus Conducting

The members of the music supervisors' class are given frequent opportunity to lead the entire student body in community singing. This is of great value to them in preparing them for the work which they are later to do in their own communities. It gives the conductor experience in music leadership and insures greater confidence in her own ability.

Other Subjects

In connection with the supervisors' course in music, two supplementary subjects are required,—English and psychology. The oral English class meets one hour a week, and it is the aim of the course to inspire confidence and do away with self-consciousness in the future supervisor. The class in English literature meets twice a week.

Two periods a week are given to the subject of psychology. This includes the psychological phases of child development, also the problem project method as applied to music.

These music courses are in charge of Inez Field Damon, Director of Music. Further information may be obtained by addressing the Principal, State Normal School, Lowell, Mass.
